

OPENEST

COLLECTION BY PATRICIA URQUIOLA

Flexibility I think is mixed with the idea of comfort – Creating more kinds of comfort zones, people, when they arrive at work, they need to feel well. This idea was the first step to create Openest.

– Patricia Urquiola

A modern office lounge area. The room features bright orange walls and a light-colored wooden panel on the back wall. In the center, there is a grey modular sofa with a yellow and grey cushion. To the left, a tall, yellow, tufted backrest stands behind the sofa. To the right, a yellow armchair with a green backrest is positioned. A small round table holds a laptop, a cup, and books. A yellow rug is on the floor. The floor is made of large, dark grey tiles.

People need flexible,
comfortable spaces to interact or work alone.

Spaces that are warm, and inviting.

Spaces that balance
visual privacy. Spaces where teams or individuals can gather to share ideas or just relax.

Openest is an ensemble of lounge furniture for the new landscape of today's work environments.

Designed for Haworth by Patricia Urquiola, Openest is both playful and poetic, yet pragmatic and functional.

Inspired by Patricia's passion to create new experiences for people, Openest elements present visual and tactile softness through it's simple graceful pieces.

Feather sofas and Chick poufs offer
approachable comfort that adapts to people's needs.

Plume Screens made from familiar textiles put the body and mind at ease.

Sprig tables
accompany seating elements where surfaces are needed.

No matter how the space is arranged,

Openest provides functional furniture

that looks neat and uncluttered

creating a refuge

for working

and for relaxing.
